SERVICE PROFILE:

The Hamline Midway Library serves as an educational and cultural resource for the Hamline Midway neighborhood. It is a strong neighborhood magnet, drawing in families with small children, seniors, and every age and type of household in between. The collection is designed to support the educational needs of students from grades K-12, home-schooled children, and preschoolers as well as the general information and recreation needs of adults. Storytimes are offered mornings and evenings at various times throughout the year. Frequent class visits are made by local schools, particularly the Hancock Collaborative Magnet. Library staff collaborates with neighborhood schools and organizations. Meeting rooms are heavily used by neighborhood organizations and other civic groups. An annual Fireside Author Series held by the Friends of the Saint Paul Public Library continues to draw well from the neighborhood.

With the growth of a more diverse population and the increase in the variety of formats in the collection, the library's circulation and usage figures have risen in recent years. Additional Internet workstations, more electronic resources, feature and informational videos and DVDs, and compact discs have pulled in new patrons as well as students from Hamline University.

Increased efficiency in obtaining books from other St. Paul libraries and from other library systems has helped make Hamline Midway Library a convenient destination.

Recent census figures indicate that Hamline Midway is becoming increasingly diverse, particularly in the African American population, while retaining many longtime households. The library maintains strong neighborhood support through enduring ties with the Hamline Midway Coalition and other neighborhood groups. Special monetary support has come from the Midway Men's Club, the annual Ethel M. Ridgway grant for children's resources, and special one-time gifts. To serve the needs of both long-term residents and the growing diverse population it will be important to provide a more diversified collection in both content and format, to maintain and support training that assists patrons with lifelong learning skills, and to maintain an active presence in the community.
