This year, 2020, was one for the history books. Globally and locally, people were challenged by uncertainties around education, employment, and the economy. Racial and social inequities that have persisted throughout society for centuries were exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and killing of George Floyd.

Our 2020 Impact Report aims to document and share the many ways Saint Paul Public Library showed up for our community during this unforgettable year.

As you read this report, we hope you feel proud of the many ways your library kept welcoming all people to connect, learn, discover, and grow during a year of immense challenge.

At Saint Paul Public Library, we are here for you – no matter what. Thank you for your continued partnership and support.

Catherine Penkert
Director
Mission

We welcome all people to connect, learn, discover, and grow.

Vision

We imagine a Saint Paul where all people feel seen, safe, and welcome. We imagine a city where libraries bring people together to experience hope, joy, and creativity through learning.
Values

The Library belongs to the people of Saint Paul. We are your library and you — our library users — shape our work. The following values guide our work.

We believe that learning is a human right. To live, adapt, and thrive in a constantly changing world, all people need supportive learning environments and free access to information and ideas from diverse points of view.

We believe in curiosity. Curiosity can change the world and the path of one’s life. We believe in igniting its spark through discovery and creative exploration.

We believe in connection. The Library is a place for quiet reflection and boisterous activity; for likeness and for difference. It is comfortable, inclusive, and vital to creating healthy, strong communities.

We believe in the power of belonging. When people feel like they belong, they are able to learn and grow. The Library brings people together to access knowledge, information, and connection. We actively work to ensure that all people see themselves and our city’s rich diversity reflected in our libraries.

In 2018 Saint Paul Public Library engaged nearly 3,000 members of our community through interviews, public listening and art sessions, and an online survey to create its 2022 Strategic Plan. The Library’s mission, vision, and values statements were developed through this process and reflect the community it serves.

Deliver user-centered customized marketing experiences.

Provide all staff members with the tools and materials needed to actively promote the Library.

Improve intercultural competency in communications.

COVID-19 changed our marketing and communications approach, and budget impacts led to significant reduction in our marketing and communications staff team from March through December. We adjusted tactics to reach residents in new ways by:

- Displaying 280 lawn signs in five languages to promote library services
- Sending 7,950 direct mail postcards promoting library resources to residents in neighborhoods with high percentages of BIPOC residents
- Sending Library Go postcards to every Saint Paul Public Schools family to inform them about student access to public library resources

Marketing and communications staff participated in training to improve intercultural communication skills.

Also, I can get free books or movies for a few weeks without having to spend money. The librarians also are super, kind, funny, and always have great book recs.”

Library employees report a high level of engagement.

- This was a year of extremes for employee engagement - incredible highs and painful lows – prompted by historic crises.
- The Library’s Equity Change Team identified improving workplace culture as the top priority for advancing anti-racism in our organization. The team began a human-centered design project to identify and implement actions towards cultivating a more anti-racist workplace culture. This project is a top priority in 2021.
- Monthly All-Staff Roundtables provided a new opportunity for staff to engage directly and collectively with senior leaders and the entire library team.

Develop and implement a strategy to align staff development with the needs of individuals and of the Library’s strategic direction.

Development of comprehensive training and development strategy was put on hold due to pandemic and service disruptions. Training and development continued, however, with an intentional focus on cultivating an inclusive workplace culture:

- 35 staff members participated in 485 hours of racial healing training and facilitation
- 16 staff members completed 26 hours of training and coaching in intercultural competence, emotional intelligence, and workplace efficacy. This built upon 33 staff completing 774 hours of training in these topics in 2019

RESULTS
2020 was an historic year. Phrases like “pivot,” “unprecedented,” and “the new normal” became the year’s buzzwords as a virus transformed life and work seemingly overnight.

On March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the COVID-19 respiratory virus to be a global pandemic. On March 16, Mayor Carter temporarily closed libraries and recreation centers to the public, signaling the severity of the viral threat. Library staff immediately shifted their focus to creating new ways of meeting residents’ needs during this time.

Virtual Programming: SPPL presented a virtual storytime on March 17 — our first virtual program during the pandemic. By the end of 2020, SPPL presented more than 2,037 virtual programs and learning opportunities.

MARCH

APRIL

Contactless Materials Pick Up:
Five locations opened with contactless pick-up options that enabled patrons to check out items without coming into a building and while maintaining social distancing.

For the remainder of 2020, SPPL focused on the following goals:

- Meeting community members’ most urgent needs.
- Prioritizing COVID-19 safety measures for staff and community.
- Managing budget challenges to continue delivering services while avoiding layoffs.

As a team, we continually modified, redesigned, and invented services to meet these goals. We focused on “safely turning the dials” — slowing dialing our service levels up and down based on the public health situation and available safety measures.
Continuing to meet the essential resource, information, and connection needs of Saint Paul residents while maintaining safety for staff and community during the pandemic required incredible teamwork, courage, and leadership from all members of the Saint Paul Public Library team.

Adapt Buildings for Safety: Library maintenance and technology teams began adapted facilities for in-person services. Adaptations included: custom plexiglass barriers for public service desks, hand sanitizer at building entrances and self-check stations, turning off shared water fountains, computer software to facilitate helping patrons while social distancing, moving furniture and computers to meet our new service needs, and HVAC system enhancements to reduce the risk of COVID-19 spread through the air.

Computers by Appointment: We opened reservation-based computer stations at three locations, restoring opportunities for the public to safely access computers and the internet via libraries.

Outdoor Programs and Services: We stayed connected with community members by offering pop-up outdoor activities and giving away books and take-and-make craft kits at libraries and Bookmobile stops. We also served summer meals at two locations.

Career Labs: We launched a rapid response pilot program at four locations to provide targeted support and computer access for COVID-impacted job seekers, in partnership with Ramsey County Workforce Solutions.

Library EXPRESS: We began welcoming patrons back into buildings via a low-contact service model called “Library EXPRESS” that focused on providing public access to copy/fax machines, printing, and browsing and checking out books, movies, and other materials. Following public health guidance, we required everyone to wear masks, and implemented strict capacity limits and 30-minute time limits on visits.

Voting and Elections: We helped expand safe, accessible voting options by serving as ballot drop-off sites for the 2020 elections. A total of 3,102 ballots were dropped off at Saint Paul libraries, which was 8% of all ballots cast in Ramsey County.

While quickly adapting library services, library staff also supported citywide efforts to serve our community:

* Helped residents complete financial support applications for the City’s emergency Bridge Fund program.
* Answered calls and questions in multiple languages and provide translation support to the City’s Community Resource Line.
* Sewed 2,000 cloth face coverings for use by City employees in public-facing roles during a time when other personal protective equipment sources were scarce.
Year of Reckoning

The May 25 killing of George Floyd by Minneapolis police officers sparked local, national, and global uprisings against police brutality and in support of Black life. This collective reckoning with the ongoing reality of racism and the grief over this murder so close to our city showed up in our organization and in our work with community members.

While our city’s streets were filled with protests, Library Youth Services staff planned and led virtual storytimes modeling how to talk to young children about race and racism, including a special storytime planned by staff member Tiana Bellamy that honored the life of George Floyd. The rest of the summer, the team incorporated mindfulness techniques in each storytime to help children process feelings like anxiety, fear, and anger. Other staff members, including Timothy Turner and AJ Ragland, were featured in story spotlights that celebrated Black life and Black stories. The Library provided financial and promotional support to community organizations Ujamaa Place and OMG Media as they created celebrations of Juneteenth and the life of civil rights leader John Lewis.

In a time of dramatic collective learning about race, racism, and racial healing, public library materials were essential to helping community members learn and grow in their anti-racism journeys.

• Our Resources on Race webpage featured staff-curated lists designed to help people of all ages, backgrounds, and reading interests learn and grow in their understanding of race and racism. This page received 2,035 hits in June. That number went down to 51 hits in December, illustrating the dramatic spike of summer interest in anti-racism and waning of public engagement as time went on.
• Through our investments in in no-wait e-books, patrons were able to check out high-demand anti-racism titles more than 1,000 times. We expanded our collection of equity-focused e-books that focused on anti-racism, racialized trauma, and resilience.

As an organization, this year brought honest and difficult conversations about racism in our workplace. We practiced trauma-sensitive approaches with each other and with ourselves. We shared ideas, frustrations, personal stories, feedback, and input to cultivate workplace culture that supports the power of belonging for all staff. Internally, staff members who identify as BIPOC organized and led circles to provide connection, support, and healing for each other. A white ally group also formed.

We invested in external training and facilitation support for racial healing circles and several preparation workshops to support readiness for courageous conversations among BIPOC and white staff members together. Thirty-three staff participated in at least one workshop, with a total of more than 485 staff hours between workshops, affinity groups and healing circles.

At Saint Paul Public Library, we have worked with intentionality to advance racial equity in our organizational polices, practices, and procedures; in our work with and for community; and in the hearts and minds of our staff team. We have struggled. We have made progress. We have fallen short. We keep going and continue moving forward. Heading into 2021, we are more committed than ever to specific investments in time, funding, and action to help make true the vision of a city that works for all.

Black Lives Matter.
Saint Paul Public Library joins the Urban Libraries Council in standing with all who are calling for immediate, collective action to end systemic racism that causes inequity in our communities.

Libraries are an essential part of our social infrastructure. Libraries, like all other areas of government, have been built on a foundation of systemic racism.

At Saint Paul Public Library, we offer resources for learning, connection, healing, and transformation. We also affirm our commitment to continue dismantling practices embedded in our system that contribute to inequity.

Our SPPL vision, co-created with community, includes, “We imagine a Saint Paul where all people feel seen, safe, and welcome.” We are here with our community to help make that vision true.
Digital Equity

Public libraries play a role in ensuring community can participate fully in digital life. Many residents depend on libraries for access to computers, Wi-Fi, and the internet. When the pandemic shifted much of life online, activities such as schooling, health care, and banking became much harder to access for residents without home computers or high-speed internet.

Saint Paul Public Library stepped up to help address our community’s digital equity crisis. We reinvented typical services for pandemic safety, invented new resource options, advocated for long-term systemic solutions, and demonstrated the role libraries play in ensuring all community members are included in our technology-driven world.

Computers by Appointment: Restoring access to public computers was a top priority when Saint Paul Public Library phased in building-based services in June. “Computers By Appointment” provided reservation-based access to computers at three locations. We modified computer labs for pandemic safety, including ample space between stations, regular equipment sanitization, and software that enabled staff to help patrons from afar to maintain social distancing.

Borrow The Internet: We expanded access to well-established, innovative “Borrow The Internet” program that allows library cardholders to borrow mobile Wi-Fi hotspots. In 2020, several emergency grant fund sources allowed SPPL to add 36 devices and allow patrons to keep them two weeks instead of one.

TechPaks: We partnered with Ramsey County Workforce Solutions to develop “TechPaks” that supplied residents with the devices, internet access, and support needed to use them effectively. Saint Paul Public Library distributed 792 TechPaks to COVID-impacted job seekers, resulting a return of $2.40 in social value for every $1 invested.
TechPaks included:
• Backpack
• Refurbished laptop
• Mobile hotspot and one year of prepaid Wi-Fi
• Access to a digital navigator (sometimes library staff) and phone-based support for using the equipment.

Computers by Appointment: Saint Paul Public Library played a critical role in several partnerships to provide resources and equipment that helped Saint Paul youth and adults stay connected to online learning and career support. Library leaders worked closely with leaders from other City departments, Ramsey County, Saint Paul Public Schools, and more to maintain the focus on the need for community internet access as essential infrastructure during the pandemic and beyond.

Saint Paul Public Library actively participated in the writing of Digital Equity in the Age of COVID-19, an Urban Libraries Council report that offered action strategies, key messages, and information to empower library leaders nationwide to take a more active, intentional role in advancing digital equity. This report spotlighted how the pandemic both intensified the digital divide and created a window for action by raising the visibility of what it means to be unconnected in our hyper-connected world—especially for our most vulnerable residents.
While COVID-19 made this summer one like no other for Summer Spark, our annual library summer learning programs, our goals remained the same:

- Promote the joy of reading for fun
- Engage in hands-on, interest-based activities
- Connect youth and families with their community and the library

When library buildings could not be open to youth and families this summer, we opted to bring summer learning directly to as many youth as possible in their homes and neighborhoods.

We developed “Saint Paul Connect,” with Saint Paul Public Schools (SPPS), Saint Paul Parks and Recreation, and other community organizations. This web platform featured videos with fun, original activities that could easily be completed by children and families at home.

We redrew the Bookmobile map to prioritize reaching residents who often did not know about the Library or our services. We continued long-standing partnerships with Saint Paul Public Housing Agency and also added nine new regular stops, including a laundromat and a strip mall in areas of the city with high percentages of BIPOC residents. We also returned to 11 former neighborhood stops. We built important relationships with our community, stop by stop, for 1.5 hours at a time all summer.

We reached additional youth through pop-up outdoor programming. Arlington Hills Library brought Createch outdoors. Createch, previously and indoor space for teens to hang out, connect with trusted adults, play with technology, discover new interests, and be themselves, became Createch Outside—a safe, outdoor space where youth and their families could engage with library staff and pick up an activity kit to bring home. Highlights included twice weekly drop-in activities outside, art kits for neighborhood teens, and partnerships with youth-serving organizations, including a massive plant giveaway with Urban Roots followed by regular social media posts describing how to care for plants and grow a garden.
In 2020, we supported our city’s young people by sharing materials and resources, providing safe opportunities to engage with creativity and hands-on learning during a time of limited connection, and helping our youth continue to find joy in learning.
